Why do we need to ask about your ethnic group?

Like all other NHS hospitals we collect information about our patients’ ethnic group. This helps us to:

- find out about who is using the service
- understand the health needs and patterns of illness among all ethnic groups
- see any gaps in the services provided for particular communities
- measure what is being done about those gaps
- make sure staff are aware of the individual needs of different ethnic groups and respond to them.

We are not asking about your citizenship or nationality, but about the ethnic group to which you feel you belong.

What you tell us will be kept confidential. Any statistics we produce using what you tell us will not include your name.

You do not have to tell us your ethnic origin but it will help us to provide a better service if you do. The staff who look after you here will not treat you differently whether you tell us or not.

If you want to ask something about filling in this form, please talk to a staff member when you come to the hospital.

When you have filled in this form please give it to the receptionist –
